

I don't for a second believe that the FCC cares about the American people. I suspect the FCC works like the rest of our political system and whoever gives the people with decision making power the most money gets what they want. It shouldn't take a genius to figure out that having a few giant corporations controlling the media in this country is a bad thing for the people who do value diversity, honesty and integrity.